CHRONOLOGY OF PREPARATION OF US REPLY TO SOVIET AIDE-MEMOIRE
OF JUNE 4

This chronology of the preparation of the US reply to the Soviet aide-memoire on Germany and Berlin received on June 4, 1961 in Vienna has been reconstructed as accurately as possible on the basis of existing records and the recollections of the Departmental officers concerned and reflects the main steps in the development of the reply.

It should be noted that under the best conditions Western response to Soviet communications-involving, in addition to internal US procedures, the long and laborious process of full consultation with the British, French, and Germans and increasingly close consultation with the other eleven NATO allies-is a time-consuming process. By way of comparison, the Soviet note of November 27, 1958, which started the current crisis, was answered on December 31, 1958. The Soviet note of November 11, 1959 on the Berlin radio station was answered December 15, 1959. The one of July 28, 1960 on the same subject was answered on September 8, 1960. The Soviet note of May 16, 1960 on Berlin legislation was answered on September 8, 1960.

June 4 - Aide-memoire received in Vienna.

June 5 - Aide-memoires given all NATO members and received in Department. Department prepared a detailed comparison with the dozen most recent Soviet communications on this subject to see if there were any differences.

June 6 - Department prepared detailed study of proposal to submit legal issues to International Court of Justice.

June 7 - Department prepared a draft reply in the form of a detailed point-by-point refutation. Although rearranged, added to, and subtracted from, this draft remained the basis for the reply throughout the entire exercise.

June 8 - Department prepared revised draft, as instructed, to include reference legal issues to International Court and transmitted it to White House in time to make the President's plans to Palm Beach with request for agreement in principle to provide basis for further discussion within US Government and with our allies.

June 9 - Department informed French of anticipated schedule of consultation.

CHRONOLOGY OF PREPARATION OF US REPLY TO SOVIET AID-MEMORANDUM

SECRET

This chronology of the preparation of the US reply to the Soviet aid-memorandum on Germany and Berlin received on June 4, 1946 in Vienna has been reconstructed as accurately as possible on the basis of existing records and the recollections of the Departmental officers concerned and reflects the main steps in the development of the reply.

It should be noted that under the best conditions Western response to Soviet communications—involving, in addition to internal US procedures, the long and laborious process of full consultation with the British, French, and Germans and increasingly close consultation with the other eleven NATO allies—is a time-consuming process. By way of comparison, the Soviet note of November 27, 1950, which started the current crisis, was answered on December 31, 1950. The Soviet note of November 11, 1959 on the Berlin radio station was answered December 15, 1959. The one of July 28, 1960 on the same subject was answered on September 8, 1960. The Soviet note of May 14, 1960 on Berlin legislation was answered on September 8, 1960.

Mr. Bundy called me this afternoon and most apologetically asked my assistance in getting prepared for the President in the next two days a paper summarizing the chronology of the preparation of the Aide Memoire on Berlin. He said that he was most reluctant to ask this and he hoped that there was some way to prepare this without calling upon Hillenbrand and the group which is working at present under great pressure. I said that I thought RO could do it and would only have to check for accuracy with GER. He said he would be most grateful if we could give him a report on the matter on the basis outlined above.

I told him that I had just heard that Mr. de Gaulle had raised objections to one part of the draft and that the full chronology probably could not yet be written but that I would embark on it up to the present moment.
